to our attention, on Saturday last, the death of Miss Caroline C. Turner, for thirty years a teacher in the Arlington public schools. Miss Turner was deceased at Norwell, Mass., Dec. 17, aged 79 years and six months. She has, since resigning her position here (about 1890) made her home with a sister. Her teaching in Arlington dated from about 1860, most of this time teaching in the sixth grade of Russell school. Before the present brick building was put up Miss Turner taught in the centre district school on Franklin street. She was an excellent and exceptionally popular teacher, a re-markable disciplinarian and withal had a sunny, happy nature, ruling by love, which she won from all who came under her influence. Many remember Miss Turner with tender regard.

=On Thursday evening, the officers of Francis Gould Post 36, G. A. R., were installed in the presence of comrades and a considerable number of friends interested in the Post. Supper was served at an early hour and was thoroughly enjoyed by the hundred and more guests gathered at the finely set tables in the banquet hall. Members of Post 36 met in an anteroom to transact items of official business prior to meeting in the auditorium for the special service. In the hands of an expert like Past-Commander-in-chief John E. Gilman, the ceremony of induction into office of comrades chosen to till stations was impressive as well as interesting to the comrades, with whom he has a personal acquaintance and warm regard. In installing, he had that personal word that means so much. The following is the full roster for 1915:-

A Case of Tit For Tat

t How Dan Cupid Straightened t Out the Tangle.

By CLARA H. HOLMES.

The train from the west pulled into the station, puffing breathlessly from its long race, and Ben Hildreth dropped off the rear car and looked about expectantly.

"Hilda!" he ejaculated joyfully, stooping to kiss the slender young lady front door betrayed her departure. who approached him with extended hand.

Her haughty withdrawal and very indignant look surprised him, and her critical glance made him painfully aware of his forty-three years and his dusty and very ordinary dress.

But when Ben clasped hands with Hilda's mother he forgot the bitter tang of disappointment. She was unchanged. Her face wore the same contented look, and the welcome he received might have been a leaf torn from the book of past happenings.

Even the hot biscuit at supper time had the well remembered relish of former days. And the thoughtful manner of saying, 'Now go and take your smoke, Ben. I know you are wanting it badly," seemed like the picking up of the raveled threads from the tangled skein of time.

Somewhat of Hilda's aloofness wore off after the first few days-whenever she could forget the humiliation of being kissed in public.

"The very idea! Any one would know he was from the west!" she concluded wrathfully when telling it to her mother.

Mrs. Stevens laughed heartily. "Are people so different in the west? I had supposed that they were merely energetic persons who needed elbow room." "Oh, you can laugh, but just look at his clothes!"

"Yes; clothing does make a difference in the flavor of a kiss."

"Whether it does or not, I am not going out there to live with a man old enough to be my father," was the angry reply.

"Tell him so, not me. You knew where he lived and his age, didn't you, when you gave him your promise?"

As the days went by Hilda's dislike seemed to increase. She would frequently go out and let her mother entertain Ben for a whole afternoonvithout the courtesy of an apology.

Ben did not appear to be annoyed in the least. Instead he chatted merrily with Mrs. Stevens and easily fell into the old time habit of calling her Lottle. Occasionally he would regard Hilda so teasingly that she would grow restive under his gaze and fly out of the room, storming to her mother: "I hate him! I hate him!"

The wedding day drew near. Ben had been out of town one afternoon. and, being delayed by business, it was late when he returned.

"Do you know where Hilda is?" he questioned of her mother.

"Why, yes," she replied. "She said that she was going over to her cousin Nettie's."

"Oh, she did, did she?" answered Ben so quizzically that Mrs. Stevens said nervously, "What is wrong?"

"There's nothing wrong." he replied with a light laugh and settled himself for a smoke. His laugh was too light to be reassuring. Mrs. Stevens drummed on the table restlessly.

"It's all right, Lottie," he assured her, laying his hand over her fingers to still their restless movement. After a moment he remarked: "How home like you make every place, Lottie! I have been thinking of the hills all day, and-it makes me homesick. I wish you and I were there.'

"It would be nice. I'd like to see the mountains. When you and Hilda have been married a year or so, I'll visit you, perhaps."

He regarded her with wrinkled eyes for a minute. Then he asked with seeming irrelevance, "Do you know Charlie Dupont?"

"Why, yes. Why do you ask that?" "Just curiosity, I suppose," with another laugh. "Ben, what is the trouble between you and Hilda?" in a tone of exasperation. . "She isn't happy, and you are tormenting. I do not believe she will be at all happy out there. She, hates the west," Mrs. Stevens remonstrated. "She'd hate any place with me. I'm the difficult problem. Lottie," replied

"You two are laying up an abundance of unhappiness for yourselves," was the grave reply. "Don't you fret over us little children, Lottie," said he. "Sit down here and let me talk to you." he said, pointing to a chair beside his own. For fully an hour they conversed in low tones, he persuading, she half remonstrating, occasionally both laughing, until at last she said in a tone of yielding. "I suppose it is all right, but it does look ridiculous for"-"Sh-sh! Here comes Hilda," cautioned he.

Her mother was sewing busily and Ben was smoking very contentedly when she entered. As neither made a remark of any kind, she seemed to feel the urgent need of an explanation of commenced in the most voluble manner: "Did you think I was going to stay all night, mother? We had such rillililililililililililililili a lot of things to talk about, Nettle

"Who?" interrupted Ben. The tone was so derisive that Hilda cried out angrily: "Perhaps you do not believe me! You are always laughing at me, and I think it's awful mean of you."

Ben smoked placidly and made no reply, which angered Hilda all the more. She looked toward her mother as if craving support, but as she appeared absorbed in her occupation the enraged girl flounced out of the room, slamming the door vigorously.

It lacked only a week to the date set for the wedding. Hilda stood in the embrasure of the window drumming restlessly on the window pane.

An automobile halted by the curb, but well in the shadow of the trees. She turned, as if tired of her amusement, and sauntered up to her room. It was but a very few minutes until a soft frou-frou through the hall and the cautious opening and closing of the Ben came from an adjoining room laughing gleefully. "Hurry up, Lottie! If they get there before us it will spoil all the fun."

"You are sure that it is an elopement. Ben?"

"Certainly. I heard them planning it. Come on, come on," he urged, taking her arm. They hurried out by the rear entrance, and before the others were under way they were flying down a side street to the parsonage.

When the elopers arrived they were conducted at once to the study by the parson himself. As they placed themselves in readiness for the marriage ceremony the parson remarked: "You must excuse me, but the law requires two witnesses. I suppose you do not object." And without waiting for a reply he opened a side door and admitted Hilda's mother and Ben.

"Oh!" breathed Hilda, frightened. But Ben said nothing. The minister went on with the ceremony, and Hilda, having caught sight of Ben's derisive smile, did not lift her eyes again till the final words were spoken.

The ceremony concluded, her mother congratulated her calmly. Ben's eyes twinkled mockingly as he held out his hand to Hilda.

"Receive my hearty congratulations, Mrs. Dupont. I came here to marry. I thought you were to be my bride, but you were a little cheat. I overheard you planning with the man who wore a better coat than I, and, listening to your very amusing comments on my personal peculiarities, I acknowledged to myself that the union would not be very satisfactory on either side. But the situation was not as unpleasant as it might have been. I had been mistaken as well as you, and the more I saw of your mother the better satisfied I was with the way things were coming. I really wanted you to be honest enough to speak out, but when you wouldn't, why, we made first inning and were married less than five minutes before your arrival here." Hilda's look of astonishment changed to one of demure mockery. "I trust, papa, dear, that you enjoyed my summary of your very mature charms." she said.

"It didn't hurt my feelings a little bit, daughter. I knew my age to a day and all about the 'skating rink,' and as to my coat, if Mr. Charlie had worn it you wouldn't have known it from broadcloth."

Hilda laughed softly and gave her newly made husband an adoring look. "So, you see, it wasn't the coat; twas the man in the coat," philosophized Ben. "It was just a little game of tit for tat, in which we are all winners," remarked Mrs. Hildreth happily.

Didn't Get a Chance to Nurse.

A professor in Heidelberg adopted the following plan in selecting women who desired to become trained nurses: "All those who desire to nurse officers step to the right and the others to my left." Seven women placed themselves to the professor's right. The professor turned to them and said: "You can go home. For ladies who only desire to nurse officers we have no use."

 PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Multiple Scierosis. Multiple scierosis, also called disseminated sclerosis and insular sclerosis, is caused by scattered patches of hardened tissue in different parts of the nervous system. It is a form of paralysis that comes on very slowly, and it generally attacks persons between the ages of fifteen and thirty. People who have passed their fortieth birthday seem to be safe from it. One of the most striking symptoms of multiple sclerosis is tremor. That is very likely to appear first when the patient is writing. As time goes on whenever the patient attempts to perform any voluntary act the tremor seizes him, and it may be so violent that he is compelled to desist. Other symptoms are double vision and a peculiar, slow, dragging speech. The disease may cause epileptic fits and is sometimes accompanied by a failing mind. The disease is almost incurable, although it often runs a very long course and may be arrested by careful medical trentment for years. The diet should be simple and wholesome, tonics should be given when necessary, and the patient should stay and sleep as much as possible in the open air.

MUST STORM THE FORTS.

It Is Not Good Tactics for an Army to Pass Around Them.

Why not go around affort instead of trying to storm it? Wha not circle the ramparts and proceed swiftly onward with the army intact, having the soldiers in the fort, after a manner of speaking, holding the sack as well as the fort?

An officer in the cavalry of the United States army explained why such veranda strategy isn't used and why it cannot be used.

"If it is a mountainous country the fort would be placed in the pass, the only road through which an invading army could travel." he explained. There would be no portification on either side, but it would be impossible to move an army with its guns and supplies over the mountains. A single man would have a hard time making the trip.

"Suppose the country were level and the forts were forty or fifty miles apart. In that case it apparently would be easy for the army to pass between the strongholds. The army tries it. The defenders of the country throw up field fortifications between the forts. Behind every rock and roll in the ground a man with a run is hidden. Rifle pits are dug hastily. The invaders encounter opposition, but perhaps they sweep on.

"Then this would happen: The forces from the forts would sweep out across the rear and cut off the base of supplies. The invaders would be without food, and the men would have no time for sleep.

"In two days the organization would be destroyed, and the enemy's cavalry approaching from the mear would cut the invaders to bits: Soldiers without food and denied sleep can't fight. Men remember their discipline best on full stomachs. An army cut off from its base of supplies would fall apart and be an easy prey for a much smaller

 PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

When Glass Has Been Swallowed A doctor prescribes the consumption of as much bread as possible after swallowing a piece of glass. The bread forms a jelly-like shell around the fragment and often allows it to pass harmlessly through the digestive tract, whereas an emetic is generally useless and apt to cause cuts. If the glass fragment is large, send for the nearest doctor and continue the bread eating until his arrival.

LONDON'S SAFE DEPOSITS.

No Privacy Allowed In Their Vaults While the War Rages.

In the city of London there are numerous safe deposits, and until the war broke out it was regarded that to have a safe in a safe deposit was absolute safety.

You entered the building and an iron grill was opened by the day watchman, and you were conducted by lifts to subterranean depths. Another iron gate, leading to the safes, was unlocked.

A master key was inserted and a covering plate removed from the keyhole of your safe. Then you inserted your own key, obtained your tin box and took it to a little room-really a small cupboard-where you locked yourself in with your valuables.

Today things are different. All the ceremonies of the past are still gone through, with this addition-the door has been taken away from that little cupboard, and you are all the time in public view of the janitors of the safe deposit. You can take what you like out of your safe, but they are very particular now as to what you put in it, and the disconcerting fact for anybody with ulterior motives and desirous of depositing a bomb is that your box is inspected before it goes back into the main safe, and each of the attendants is armed with a big six chambered revolver, which he wears in a very ostentatious position in a holster attached to his waist.

His instructions are that in an emergency he is to shoot. The safe deposit is now very safe indeed.

WAR SEARCHLIGHTS.

New Ones They Are Using on the Battlefields of Europe. New searchlights that form exceedingly difficult targets for an enemy's shots are now used in the European war, having been perfected just before it commenced. Ordinary searchlights are, of course, good marks for an enemy, though not so good as might be expected. Their use on a battle line has many restrictions because of the aim they afford. The new lights are designed to have all the power of the biggest searchlights in the service but to offer a target no larger than a baseball. The reflectors of these lights are three feet in diameter, but all the light rays are so accurately reflected that they can be sent through a three inch orifice. Thus the light can be armored against attack by small arm fire or quick firing machine guns, leaving open only a three inch aperture. As a further protection against shots the reflector glass is composed of many small sections, bound together by wire netting, which will hold the parts together even after being hit.—Saturday Evening Post.

Our New Army Chief. General Hugh Lenox Scott, succeeding General Wotherspoon as chief of staff of the army, the latter having reached the age limit after forty-one years of service, was the first officer honored with a promotion by President Wilson after he became president. Following a brilliant tour of duty on the Mexican frontier as the cavalry commander at El Paso, be was ordered to Washington as General Wotherspoon's successor when the latter was named to succeed General Wood as head of the general staff. He is a native of Kentucky and a graduate of West Point.

Europe In Africa.

African prossessions and protectorates of the European powers now at war are more than three times as large as continental United States. They are more than three times as large as all of Europe now plunged in war and are eleven times larger than England. France, Germany and Belgium, which control them. The largest individual holder of African territory is France, with 3,812,000 square miles, more than 1,500,000 of which is the Sahara desert.

Exactly eleven minutes after a Pennsylvania train moved over a 720 foot three span steel bridge weighing 7.000,-000 pounds, which was in a temporary position, another train passed over the bridge, which had been moved sidewise forty-seven feet to its permanent place. Between the breaking of the rails and reconnecting them ten minutes and seventeen seconds elapsed. The new bridge spans the Muskingum river at Tyndall, O.

Our Alaskan Boundary. Last summer saw completed the demarcation of the boundary line between Alaska and Canada, straight north along the one hundred and fortyfirst meridian to the Arctic ocean. No other boundary demarcation has extended into such high latitudes, and few boundaries of equal length are so straight. The line follows the meridian without deviation, regardless of mountains, swamps and forests.

COVERT CLOTH.

Suits of This Popular Fabric to Be Worn In the Spring.

SMART WALKING SUIT.

One notes with interest the revival in popularity of covert cloth. It is a fabric that is satisfactory in appearance and wearing qualities. Many spring models shown by manufactur-Illustrated here is a street gown of covert with an oddly designed coat. The pointed fronts, high belt which buttons to the coat in the front confines the fullness at the sides. There is a plain, straight collar which rolls up around the throat. The diagonal straps are really patch pockets. The gored skirt has the fashionable flare and is in accordance with fashion's preference for fuller skirts on spring

PETTICOATS FOR DANCING.

Slashes at the Side to Permit Freedom of Movement.

The dancing petticoat is usually arrangement insures freedom, without china pots. The preparation can be attractive and along the lines featured which it is impossible nowadays to fance. The lower edges of the front and back of the petticoat are usually rounded, so that the petticoat is really formed of two sections rounded into a deep oval at the bottom fastened together along their long edges and fit ted or gathered into the waist along the narrow edges.

Petticoats of knitted silk are far more durable than those made even of the softest and best satin. For eventually the satin wears out, and it seems as if the knitted silk fabric never wears out. It is usually used for the upper part of the petticoat and in more expensive ones is used also for the plaited ruffle. These are more than worth the extra price charged for them.

Petticoats made of pique, buttonholed in big scallops about the bottom, are durable and serviceable. They are not transparent, and that is one of the things that commend them for practical wear.

Care of the Sink.

Never leave the kitchen sink in a greasy and dirty state. Do not throw anything but water down it, and if the water is greasy flush it well afterward with hot soapy water. When the washing is finished pour down some hot soda water as an extra precaution. Never allow grease and refuse to collect in the sink pipe and trap or they will soon get out of order. Every sink should be provided with a sink basket in which to keep tea leaves and vegetable parings, etc., and a sink brush, with which the sink should be thoroughly scoured after each washing up.

Flannel lined velvet butterflies in gorgeous colorings are hand painted for teapot holders. Brilliant parrots, also painted, are for the same use.

A linen bag of dark blue, green or red for holding a pair of garden flower scissors and a rubber flower sprinkler, together with an inside pocket for flower wire and tinfoil, is a most useful present to offer with a garden

When engaged on delicate needlework it is a good idea to have a little flour in a saucer by you and to dip your fingers in it from time to time. This will not only keep the hands dry. but the work beautifully clean.

Winter Care of the Skin. Every girl can retain her soft, smooth skin through the entire winter by spending just a few extra minutes in preparing for it a guard against win-

The first rule, which each girl should remember, is never to dry her skin hastily after washing. This is the most important of all rules for winter, for more chapped skins are due to a slipshod drying than to any other

Also the girl who is careful of her complexion should be quite sure that no soap remains on her skin. After washing with soap she should rinse all over with clear, fresh water. Then a brisk, thorough drying should take place with a coarse bath towel if possible. A dry, rough bath towel is far better for thorough drying than the ordinary face towel, which absorbs the water but does not take the moisture from the skin.

If the girl is going out immediately after washing a little pure offive oil should be rubbed into the face and a little camphor ice into the hands. The pure olive oil is far better than ordinary cold cream for keeping the skin smooth. It is not apt to grow a great deal of hair, as so many persons are inclined to think. Before going out into the wind a little of the oil should by her kindness to the wounded and be well rubbed into the face and then dusted over with powder.

At night, after the face has been rub in some good cold cream and then remove it with absorbent cotton. This the day, but it will also leave the face soft and smooth for the night.

A point for the girl who is anxious to avoid a chapped face is to taboo veils, unless they are of white mesh. ers are carried out in this material. If they are closely woven the moisture from the breath will cling, wetting the veil, which in turn will chap all the skin around the mouth and nose.

> An excellent and delightfully fragrant cold cream for rough hands, or face,

The Hands In Cold Weather.

can be made as follows: Take eight ounces of almond oil, one and one-quarter of an ounce of spermaceti, one and one-quarter of an ounce of white wax. Shred the wax and the spermadeti finely and put in a china jar. A small enamelware saucepan will do. Stand it in another saucepan about a third full of boiling water. Keep this simmering until the ingredients are entirely melted and then add a few drops of lavender oil and pour tato small ing hat here pictured. The shape is used as soon as it is cool and will keep for a long time. Another invaluable lotion for hands that are inclined to be red in winter. even though they do not chap badly, is made of lemon juice, eau de cologne and glycerin, equal parts of each. This can also be used for chapped hands.

The Winter Walk.

Walking is a desirable exercise at all times, but in winter when the air is bracing it is especially helpful. The hour's walk each day, briskly done, regularly followed, will be found to be the greatest health giver and best of laxatives. Who cannot find time to walk each day at least a few blocksa real walk, not a hurried skip of a few minutes nor a languid, leisurely stroll, ended as soon as the walker feels a little bit fatigued? This tired feeling is the flag which signals that more walking is needed. If the exercise is persisted in as each day goes by the tired feeling will not be noticed. One should walk into and over and past the tired feeling until that second influx of strength is noted which runners call their "second wind." When this is done the walking is doing some good.

Brushing the Hair.

brush and having the hair divided in short veil falls over the face. four portions. Brush evenly and firmly, wielding the brush from the crown of the head to the ends of the strands of hair with an uninterrupted movement. First bring the brush down on to the scalp and drag it through the hair, using firm, brisk strokes, which will start the circulation in the scalp.

Rosy Finger Nails.

Rosy finger tips and pink mails are very pretty and when nature refuses to bestow them art furnishes a very natural substitute. After the hands are bathed rub the nails with equal parts of cinnabar and emery, then with oil of bitter almonds. Remember too high a polish is considered vulgar. The finger tips and palms can be tinted with a liquid rouge just a delicate pink.

If You Are Too Fat.

Buttermilk will make you thinner if you drink enough of it. Doing without breakfast is one way of reducing flesh. Eat your first meal at 1 p. m. and then eat sparingly. Eat no potatoes, beans, corn, peas or beets. All bread should be tonsted.

Curlers For the Hair.

Curiers of any description are none too good for the hair, but the kinds where the hot iron does not come in contact with the hair itself are best. Then the kid one where no iron at all is used is better still.

Regrets For Afternoon Tea.

If unable to accept an invitation for afternoon tea your visiting card, mailed to arrive on the day of the tea or sent by a messenger or some friend who attends, is all the regrets required for an afternoon tea. If the hostess happens to be a very dear friend who would be expecting you, you could send a personal note explaining why you could not be present, and you could tell her how sorry you were to miss the tea.

For Young Folks

Prince William, Son of the German Crown Prince.

The little boy here pictured is the oldest son of Frederick William, crown prince of Germany and the grandson of the kaiser. Because of the war in Europe the little boy does not see his father very often. Prince Frederick William is leading one of the German armies now fighting in France. Prince William Frederick was born on our national birthday, the 4th of July, 1906. so he will be nine years old on his next birthday. He has three younger brothers, Louis Ferdinand, Hubert and Frederick

It seems rather queer to folks on this side of the world that two brothers should have the same Christian name, but that is a custom of royalty that has little favor in the greatest republic of the world. Some day, perhaps, William Frederick may come to be the ruler of the German people.

An Amusing Game. In the game of "How Do You Like

It?" one of the company leaves the room and the others fix up some word to be guessed by him when he returns. He then goes around asking each of the company "How do you like it?" It is better to select a word having a va riety of meanings, as it is more difficult to guess. Suppose the word "stick" to be selected. One might answer that he liked it when he was out walking; another, when he was sealing a letter; another, when he met a savage dog, etc. If the questioner is unable to guess the word the first time he goes around again, asking, "When do you like it?" and, if not successfulthis time he asks, "Where do you like it?" Failing in three trials he must retire and let another word be selected. Succeeding, he must point out the person who gave the clew, who must pay a forfeit and go out to be puzzled in

A Geographic Game. A game which is entertaining as well as instructive is played as follows: There may be any number of players, and it will be enjoyed by people of all ages. Let the beginner give some geographical word-the name of a country, city, river or mountain. The next player continues with a name whose given by the preceding player. Thus suppose the first word given is Albany, the second must begin with Y -Yucatan, for instance. Number three must give a place whose initial letter is N and so on. When a player fails to have a name ready he is dropped from the game, and the one who can play the longest is, of course, the winner.

We have been privileged to know personally each head of the police department of this town. Our relations with these men have been so cordial and pleasant that it is a personal satisfaction to recall the past and to feel that we have been mutually helpful to each other in endeavors along the line of civic betterment, in eliminating unsatisfactory conditions and establishing this community as a highly desirable place of residence for law abiding, order loving, progressive people. Each of these officers repeatedly poured into our ears his tale of woe over the burden placed on his shoulders by the laws relating to juvenile offenders, whose doings in town constituted a large part of the activities of officers under his direct control. Being practical men they clearly saw that penalties set as deterants to infractions of law utterly failed because there was no real pinch in them. Time after time we have been assured, "Place the penalties on the parent and make them heavy enough to be really a punishment, and all this funny business by boys will be stopped as with a patent shut-off."

This week Senator Sanford Bates of nearly torn down. Boston filed with the Legislature a bill which makes parents responsible for wayward and delinquent minors, providing that by fine or imprisonment or both, parents who are careless or indifferent to the matter may be taught that communities have rights that individuals are bound to respect. We believe thoroughly in the spirit of the legislation. If it is enacted, in the future parents in cities will stop furnishing bags and baskets to boys and girls to carry into the country and bring islation lies in the absence of personal responsibility for paternal oversight on the part of those on whom that responsibility legally rests, and the changed condition since the laws pertaining to juveniles were enacted. The laws and rules of labor unions have been largely to blame for the trouble forced upon guardians of the peace. Hundreds of young men who might have found safety, means of livelihood and finally had homes of their own, are restrained in reformatory institutions and unfortunately removed from every path leading to good citizenship. Had their first offenses been penalized on their parents, is it likely they would have been allowed to drift into the place where ferers in connection with the war. Women's Aid Asso'n's Annual.

The annual meeting of the Women's Aid As o'n of Symmes Arlington Hosp tal was held Jan. 8th, at three o'clock, in Associates Hall, with the president, Mrs. John H. Hardy, in the chair. The afternoon was devoted to listening to reports which were read by the chairman of the different departments and included secretary's report, Mrs. A. M. Walcott; treasur-er's report, Mrs. Harrison G. Bourne; Work Com., Mrs. F. B. Thompson; Fi nance Com., Mrs. W. K. Hutchinson, read by Miss Ethel Wellington, a member of the committee, in the absence of Mrs. Hutchinson; Commissary Com., Mrs. J. Herbert Mead; Free Bed Fund, Mrs. Truman L. Quimby; Membership, Mrs. E. H. Rowe.

The treasurer's report showed that 4,229.61 had been the total earnings of the year, this coming from the membership fees, Free Bed Fund, "Country Circus," and "The Movies." Nearly all of this has been expended, with a balance on hand of about one hundred dollars. The membership of the Association last year numbered four hundred. The donacions to the hospital have been most gentrous. Special mention was made of the Arlington market gardeners, who from June first to October first supplied all the fresh vegetables for the hospital each day, with the exception of Sunday. During the afternoon, Mrs. T. W. White, who was the first president of the Association, spoke informally of the splendid work which the Association had accomplished the past year for the benefit of the hospital. Mrs. Emma L. Sprague, as chairman of the nominating committee, presented her report, with a list of officers, which were elected as follows:-

President, Mrs. J. H. Hardy; vice-presidents, Mrs. Geo. McK. Richardson and Mrs. B. S. Currier; secretary, Mrs. Burton Kline; treasurer, Mrs. H. G. Bourne; directors for three years, Miss Nellie Ewart, Mrs. Luther Sherman, Mrs. A. C. Carpenter, Mrs. B. F. Moors, Mrs. Wm. M. Hatch, Mrs. Harold Yeames. Mrs. H. F. Martin.

Concert and Lecture.

At the meeting of the East Arlington Improvement Asso'n, Monday, Jan. 11, at eight o'clock, in the Crosby school hall, the members and their friends were entertained by a concert and lecture. The music was attractive and was furnished by Knight's orchestra, and Mr. Henry A. Morss, vice-president of the Simplex Wire & Coal Co., lectured on "Cruising the Inland Seas of Japan." The stere-opticon views were taken by Mr. Morss while on a cruise in and about the Island pleasant manner, and prior to the lecture the past-president, Mr. Wm. I. Marsters, gave a short resume of the Asso'n, and those who were present from other sections of the town were surprised to learn CHAS. T. HARTWELL the amount of work which had been accomplished for the development and benefit of the East Side, finding it no modest rival to other sections of Arlington. The thanks of all present were given Mr. Morss for the rare pleasure he gave, - his views were of rare subjects, bringing a freshness and breezy interest quite removed from the ordinary stereopticon

EAST LEXINGTON LOCALS

The United Improvement Society of Liberty Heights is still working to improve their estates and make their hilltop a goodly annex to our town. Mr. Walter H. Kew, of Curve street, past week, is now reported as being on the road to health again. Mrs. Eva Frost Ober announces the en-who has been confined to his bed for the gagement of her daughter, Marion 1. Frost, to Mr. E. Edwin Soderquist of Arlington Heights.

Died in East Lexington, Jan. 6, 1915, Frances A. Pierce, widow of Loring S. Pierce,

Mrs. Pierce was the daughter of Lewis and Sarah Harrington, born in Lexington, Jan. 3d, 1824, and descended from families who were respected and took prominent parts in our revolutionary struggle, and she took pleasure in narrating incidents relative to her early life. She was educated in our schools and was married, April 23, 1846, Mr. Pierce being much respected and honored with Lexington town offices. Of the four children born to the couple, three survive her,-Alfred, George Loring and Miss Gertrude Pierce. Her husband and a son died several years ago. Mrs. Pierce, in consideration of her extreme age, has been very days, and quietly passed her 91st birth-day on Sunday, Jan. 3. The funeral was on Friday afternoon, Jan. 8, at her residence on Mass. avenue. Rev. Harold L. Pickett, of Follen church, conducted a short service of scripture selections, poems and an impressive prayer. There were beautiful floral gifts and the casket was covered with lovely violets and pinks. The bearers were Messrs, Ellsworth, Frank W. and Clifford Pierce, the three grandsons. Mrs. Pierce, beside her three children, is survived by four P. O. Building.

grandchildren and one great grand-daugher, all of whom were very dear to her. It was a rare January day when all that was mortal of Mrs. Pierce was laid beside other loved ones in our cemetery,

We have known Mrs. Pierce since our childhood days and we wish to pay a little tribute to the memory of so true and noble a woman. It seemed fitting, after a so long and active life, that she passed away so peacefully, leaving the bodily casket of over pinety years, which had done so much in the earthly home, for the heavenly. She was truly a "Mother in Israel," attending well to the ways of her household and s ill opening the doors of her home to the fatherless and motherless and always ready to do a kind act. She loved children and good reading and the cultivation of flowers, and was always interested in Follen church and its prosperity. She has taken pleasure for many years in the belief that her dear departed were ministering spirits in her home, and all can now feel that she is not dead, but her loving spirit to watching over us and all will rise up and call Banking Hours; 8 a. m., to 12 m., Saturday. ing over us, and all will rise up and call

-An interesting feature of the feeture on the Morgan Memorial work last Tuess day evening, was the dedication of the new collection plates, given by the triends in the church, which were used for the first time. The lecture was held under the auspices of the Marion-Philathea Bible class.

-On Tuesday evening. Dr. Gilbert, paster of the Morgan Memorial church on Shawmut avenue, Boston, gave an illustrated lecture on the work which is being done in the South End and in Athol and those who braved the storm were amply repaid, for the lecture was a most interesting one. Dr. Gilbert is one of the foremost socioligists in the country and is a most entertaining lecturer. About forty were in attendance and a generous offering was made for the Margan Memorial. Rev. F. Kendrick Hackett, who is intensely interested in city mission work, spoke briefly commending the work.

-Notwithstanding the severity of the storm on Tuesday evening, there was a large number present at the annual meeting of Park Ave. Cong. church. All enoyed the bountiful supper served at sixthirty. Reports were listened to from the clerk, treasurer, tanding committee, Sunday school superintendent, Woman's Guild and Friday Social Club, the Y. P. S. C. —The Hobby Club held its annual New

The Hobby Club held its annual New Year's party this year and, although the report comes a bit late, the club is such an unusual one, we are only too glad to give the report in these columns. Since the club was formed four years ago by present. This will be the first time the Mrs. Cyrus E. Dailin, at her home on ladies have attended a regular session of Oakland avenue, the boys have had this annual party, to which fifteen girl friends are invited. It was held this year in the Dallin studio and proved one of the happiest parties ever held. Perhaps this was so from the fact that each boy brought one of two pairs of wristers which he had knit to be sent to the Belgians. Charades, music and dancing were participated in and one of the delights of the evening was the story telling by Mr. Dalin, topped off with refreshments. Each year Tennyson's "Ring Out, Wild Bells," is recited just as the old year is dying. The boys who make up the club are as Sunday at the doon hour, with the minis- | their inspiration and guide ever since the club was formed. Each boy, who is a member, has some hobby which he is permitted "to ride," so to speak, and this gives variety to the meetings, which are held once in two weeks on Friday evening with Mrs. Dallin. At present the boys are taking up the study of Hamlet. Plans are in progress for an entertainment to be given for the benefit of the "Free

Bed" in Symmes Arlington Hospital. -A large number attended the whist party and dance Tuesday evening, in Cresent Hall, in spite of the unfavorable weather conditions. The affair was run under the auspices of the Sunday echool teachers of St. James' church and was a grand success in every way. The party was managed by the young lady teachers, and they merited many compliments in the efficient manner in which everything went along and for the fine financial success of the undertaking. The pastor, Rev. David R. Heffernan, and his assistant, Rev. John Mahoney, were present, and Rev. William Murphy of North Cambridge was their guest. Many residents from surrounding towns and cities participated and the hall was filled to its utmost capacity. The early part of the evening was taken up with whist, and the souvenirs for the highest scores were presented to Miss Margaret Power, Miss Helen G. Estes, Miss Sarah McDougall, Miss Lea Donovan, John E. McCarty, George Sweeney, Thomas D. Butler, Jr. and William Furdon. After the whist refreshments were served and then dancing was in order until a late hour. The affair was in charge of the following commit-

She expresses her willingess to send photographs of the wonderful Exposition, also books giving descripions, and she is in hopes that some at east of her eastern friends will be able to attend. Mrs. Jernegan has taken rooms at the large "Inside Inn," which is being built on the grounds and where she exnects to be registered for a month. Mrs. Ingleton Schenck of Millinocket, Maine, the younger daughter of Mrs. Jernegan, is expected to go on to California the later part of March, so as to avoid the long New England spring, and return to Milli-nocket in June. Mrs. Jernegan writes that she is in the best of health, with the exception of her lameness and, although eighty-three years of age, she feels perfeetly able to travel again to Massachusetts, for which she has many pleasant associations and kindly feelings for the friends here in New England. Mrs. Jernegan in her letter says, "I shall not see many of my dear old Arlington friends if

ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR WALSH

Urges Immediate Emergency Appropriation For Supplying Unemployed With Work-State Finances Should Be Handled by Budget System-Taxation an All-Important Question -Urges Public Inquiry as to Telephone and Telegraph Rates-Transportation, Biennial Elections, Agriculture and Other Important Questions Are Given Due Consideration

Following is the inaugural message. in part, of Governor David I. Walsh to the two branches of the legislature of Massachusetts:

Gentlemen of the General Court:

We meet this year under somewhat unusual conditions and are confronted by problems that call for our utmost diligence and most careful thought. A tremendous conflict is raging beyond and upon the seas, with consequences already seriously felt within our own borders and likely to be increasingly felt. Unemployment with its inevitable concomitants of suffering and crime has risen above the normal level: the confidence of investors in hitherto stable investments, rudely shaken many months ago, has not yet been restored; the purchasing power of many workers is seriously reduced and we have furthermore in the near future to expect and provide for an unprecedented influx of immigrants from the devastated fields and ruined industries of the old world.

To avert an aggravated congestion of our cities, to utilize the newcomers and our own under-employed in developing our neglected natural resources and opening new avenues of employment, and to continue to improve the conditions of labor without crippling the industries upon which remunerative employment must depend—these are some of the special tasks which confront us, while as usual there are before us serious problems relating to the promotion of the public health, the extension of educational advantages, and the development of our commerce demanding our ceaseless study. The work that lies before us is arduous and exacting, but it offers to faithful and devoted effort great opportunities of service to the commonwealth.

Relief For the Unemployed First of all, I ask your immediate action to solve as far as a solution is within our power the pressing problem of the unemployed.

By a coincidence which seems to me clearly providential, the legislation of preceding years has made surprisingly simple and easy the task of supplying a very large measure of relief, and that not only without any ultimate burden upon the taxpayers, but with direct and indirect results of great financial, physical and moral advantage to the entire common-

By chapter 759 of the acts of 1913. amended by chapter 596 of the last session, a board composed of the boards of health and agriculture, acting jointly, has been given authority and a small appropriation to begin the task of reclaiming the large freshwater swamps and marshes in eastern Massachusetts, which, although in natural fertility and ease of cultivation far surpass most of the land now under cultivation at the state, are now practically valueless, and cannot, from the rature of the engineering problems involved and the dispersion of ownership, be reclaimed by private enterprise. Surveys and studies of various tracts have been made, and all is now ready for immediate action. Much of these wet lands consists of open meadows, requiring for reclamation suitable machinery but a relatively small amount of unskilled hand labor. There are, however, great wooded swamps where the conditions are reversed; where a large amount of unskilled labor can be employed to advantage in the winter. If you at once-within a week if possible—pass an emergency appropriation of not less than $50,000, thereby providing the board with the means of taking over not less than a thousand acres of such land, establishing workmen's camps, cutting the wood and timber, and preparing it for market, and also authorize the employment, as an emergency measure, of laborers at a moderate monthly wage, with board and lodging-giving preference, if you will, to men with dependent families—several thousand men if need be can be given work for the next few months, with mutual advantage to themselves and the commonwealth, preserving at the same time their self-respect, avoiding the pauperizing tendencies of gratuitous relief, and lessening the strain upon the finances of our charitable or-

This year again I urge you to exercise the utmost care, not only in authorizing appropriations for new and special undertakings, but also in making those appropriations required by existing legislation. While a not inconsiderable portion of our existing anancial hurden has been brought upsentatives, to secure local improvements at the expense of the commonwealth, by far the major part of the enormous increase in the state tax and debt in the past ten years has been brought about by the needs of a rapidly growing industrial state and the rapid advance of humanitarism in government. The people demand more of the government than ever before.

During the financial year just closed we expended for the protection of public health $600,000; for educational pargoses, $1.877,000; for the construction and maintenance of highways, $2,300,000; for the care of the sick, the poor, the insame and the defective, $5,635,000; and for the retraint of delinquents, $2,314,000.

There may be some significance in the fact that for several years our charitable and correctional expense have approximated the amount of the state tax, which at once brings up the question of the wisdom of intrusting the expenditure of this immense sum to unpaid commissions—a policy that would never be tollerated by private enterprise. I submit for your careful consideration the advisability f a complete reorganization of the state board of charity along the lines of the new state department of health.

The estimated expenses, under existing laws for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1915, are $19,469,095. The estimated revenue is $9,289,000. The amounts asked for this year by the various departments, boards, commissions and trustees for special purposes, such as new buildings and improvements, total $2,629,893.

There is much to criticise in our methods of fnance. The state has been meeting from the tax levy expenses that should be met by the issuance of bords. The legislature has prescribed one theory of financing for cities and towns, while following an entirely different one for the com-

Budget System

I believe that the proper and only businesslike way of handing the state finances is by the so-called budget system. The estimates of the various commissions, boards and depart ments, both for regular expenses and for special purposes, should be sub mitted to the governor as the responsible head of the administration. who, after investigation by the commission on economy and efficiency. should transmit to the legislature a definite, detailed budget showing precisely which items were approved and hich were disallowed or reduced by the governor. The budget system would not only locate responsibility but would add much to the economy and efficiency with which plans are made for future work.

It is believed by thoughtful men that the great political controversies of the future in this country will be waged over questions of taxation.

As much injustice to the average citizen can be perpetrated through a had system of taxation as through any other evil of government. Last year some progress was made which must be considered notable in contrast with the inertia of former years. Much more remains to be accomplished before our plan of adjusting the public burdens will be fair to the taxpayer, and before we have brought our tax laws up to the standard of the more advanced states.

We still impose double taxation ipon certain forms of "intangible" property, affording a plausible excuse for wholesale tax dodding, which the resent plan of assessment has proved wholly inadequate to check

Last year the legislature provided for the exemption of certain securities from taxation upon proof to the tax commissioner that the property on which they are based is "already taxed." The application of such a rule to the case jist cited would have relieved the note holders of a large here of their just liability without providing for a just assessment of the physical property or doing justice to the taxpayers of Lawrence.

I therefore recommend: 1. That this law of last year be so amended as to provide that the tax commissioner be supplied with proof that the tangible property has been adequately taxed as a prerequisite to registration. 2. That full returns of taxable roperty be made compulsory

3. That with every deed conveying real estate there shall be filed under ath a statement of the true considera tion for the conveyance.

4. That upon discovery of any property that has escaped taxation a tax shall be assessed upon it not only the current year but for each of the ive years preceding.

5. That the commissioner be given adequate power and facilities to revise and correct local assessments and to remove incompetent local asessors, and also-

erty and franchises of widely extended businesses and industries, such as railroad and telephone companies, and to assign to each city and town the proportion of the whole value to be taxed by such city or town, and the actual value at which it is to be

(d) To equalize local assessment of property for the purpose of establishing an equitable bosis for assigning to each municipality its share of the direct state tax.

Railroads

The condition of the Boston and Maine railroad is the gravest question in our ever-present transportation problem. The railroad system still remains in its unstable state, whereby the stockholders of the Boston and Maine railroad have but a small equity in the whole Boston and Maine system. The fluctuations in railroad prosperity thus fall with crushing weight upon a very small portion, when, with a sound financial structure, the weight would be borne equally by the whole.

About 80 percent of the Boston and Maine system is comprised of roads beased to the Boston and Mane railroad upon terms out of proportion to its present financial condition. several years past it has been paying dividends without earning them. During the year ending July 1, 1914, it paid no dividends and failed to earn the amount of its fixed charges, showing a deficit of $2,044,742

It is obvious to any intelligent citizen that all of these lesses cannot continue to fall upon the stockholders of the Boston and Maine railroad without precipitating an undesirable disintegration of our distinctively New England transportation system The disjoining of this railroad system would not only be harmful to the public interest of New England, but would be especially harmful to the component parts of the system itself.

I have reason to believe that many of the parties directly interested in this situation realize their responsibility and are now working out a plan of reorganization which may put this railroad system upon firmer ground.

Election Matters Constitutional Convention

A year's experience leaves me more firmly convinced than ever that Massachusetts ought to hold a constitutional convention, which she has not had for more than half a century. A large part of our time, both in and out of the legislature, is engrossed with discussion and agitation concerning great policies which will not down and will not be settled until the judgment of the electorate is obtained

I suggest, as the questions most persistently pressing for constitutional authority, the following: 1. The initiative, the referendum and the recall of elective officers. 2. Hiennial elections.

3. The short ballot, with concentration of power and responsibility in the governor.

4. The abolition of the executive council and enlarging the powers of the lieutenant governor. 5. Woman suffrage.

6. Right's of cities and towns to deal in necessaries of life in times of public distress. 7. Government by majority.

8. The right of the governor to veto specific items in appropriation bills.

9. Homestead legislation, whereby the commonwealth may help people of small means to acquire homes of their own. 10. Revision of the taxation sys-

11. The making of workmen's compensation compulsory. 12. Enabling citizens in certain cases to cast their ballots without attending the polls in person.

13. Proportional representation. 14. Empowering the legislature to make regulations for the commission of officers of the militia.

Woman Suffrage It is a settled principle of the payers of the commonwealth; and American democracy that when a large element of the community demands the submission to the people of a proposed law or change in their form of government they are entitled to the judgment of the whole electorate. Therefore, I recommend the submission to the people of the state of an amendment to the constitution providing for woman suffrage.

Initiative and Referendum In any program of reform the most fundamental policy, must always be that which seeks to give the people a greater control of their own governpolicy, the activities of the companies ment. When new conditions and a long train of abuses have made it difficult and often impossible for public opinion to control the government. or even clearly to make itself mani fest, it is time for a change in some of our political processes which will make the political power absolutely amenable to the popular will.

The Democratic party, the Progressive party and the progressive Republicans have advocated the initiative and referendum in Massachusetts for a number of years. It does not embody a new principle, but is merely a device for carrying into effect the old principle laid down by our forefathers in the bill of rights in the constitution of this common-

I therefore earnestly recommend the passage this year of an amendment to the constitution which will permit us to adopt the so-called initiative and the price to the consumer is mountreferendum.

Election Law Reforms

Commendable progress was made last year in correcting the defects which long experience has disclosed in our election laws, notably in the abolition of party enrollment; the creation of an election court above the reach of local politics; the adoption of the English plan of unseating and disqualifying candidates when corrupt practices have been used in their behalf; and the prohibition of unduly large campaign contributions from individuals, whether candidates or their supporters. But you will note that these reforms in no way lessen the demand for heavy campaign expenditures by parties and candidates in itself a serious and growing evil, however legitimate the objects for which the expense is incurred. The additional provisions imperatively needed before another election are accordingly these:

First-Some form of penalizing the neglect to exercise the right and duty of suffrage. There are several feasible methods by which we could compel the voters to exercise the vital civic duty of casting their ballots.

I do not urge any particular method, but I do urge that some method be devised which will remove from politics the corrupting necessity of raising large campaign funds for the purpose of getting out the vote.

Second—An official campaign bulletin of information to the voters should be supplied by the state, containing not only arguments for and against measures submitted to the people, but also an impartial opportunity for statements regarding qualifications of all candidates entitled to a place on the official ballot.

Third—There should be an ample provision, at public expense, of meeting places for the discussion of political principles and issues. Fourth-Free conveyance to the polls should be supplied for cases of physical incapacity only. All private expenditures for the purpose should be brought under the penal provisions of the corrupt practices act.

Local Self-Government

I believe that as far as possible every local community should be left to govern itself. Local self-government can only be as good as the citizens make it; but the remedy, when our municipalities are unfortunately suffering from poor administration, is not state control.

I therefore recommend that the power to grant and regulate liquor licenses, and to control their police force, be restored to the people of

On similar grounds, and in accordance with the suggestion of the civil service commission, I recommend the taking away from that commission the power to approve or reject appointees of the mayor of the city of Boston.

Agriculture The condition of the agricultural industry of Massachusetts is still on the whole extremely unsatisfactory. Notwithstanding a marked improvealize how much its efficiency is im- ment in some special branches of paired by the necessity of making fruit-raising and market gardening. ready for and participating in the mixed or general farming, so-called struggle of annual elections. Reorganization of the Board

Massachusetts agricultural college in recent years. I still am of the opinion, however, that the present organization of the board is unwieldy and out of date; that the plan is not well adapted to promote the best possible development of our neglected agricultural resources for the benefit: of consumer and producer alike.

I therefore recommend the reorganization of the board on the model last year adopted for the board of health, concentrating executive functions in a responsible commissioner of agriculture adequately paid for his entire time, and assisted by an advisory council of moderate size compensated fairly but not extravagantly for the time actually given to the work of the department. All the present subsidiary boards should be placed under the jurisdiction of the commissioner of agriculture, as analogous drattments have been made responsible to the health commissioner.

In recent years the public unrest at the constant advance in the price of milk has been very marked. Suspicion and discentent pervade the discussion of the milk question. While ing higher and higher year by year the number of cows in Massachusetts, is steadily growing less. The milk situation is so important that we should know the truth about it as soon as possible. I therefore recommend that a commission of three competent citizens be appointed forthwith to inquire into all the facts pertaining to the situation, with power to summon witnesses and papers and to administo the legislature, with such remedies as they deem feasible, not later than the 1st of next April, so that the present legislature may act upon

I commend to your careful study the report of the recess commission created to consider the needs of the western counties. I especially approve the advice of the commission as to placing of thoroughfares under the expert care of the highway commisbonds to provide for the immediate completion of the main arteries of of unconnected portions, which, while the missing links are unimproved, give the farmers little if any better means than at present for transporting their produce to market.

The Needs of the Western Counties

Prison Reform 🦠

The first step that must be taken to secure any adequate reform of the long-standing and generally acknowledged defects in our prison system is unquestionably the placing of all the county penal institutions under the care of the state. The grouping of cities and towns in counties, with a quasi-federal government intermediate between the municipality and the state, is a superannuated product of the days of slow and costly communication, and at its best is now a needless and power-wasting cogwheel in the governmental machine.

Notwithstanding the gradual ex tension of state supervision and control of criminals during the last fifty years, it still remains true that nearly half the prison population is in the county jails, where no adequate classification is possible even if attempted.

The remedy is so plain and so inexpensive that it seems entirely feasible to enact the necessary legislation early enough in the session to allow a comprehensive plan of classification to be devised and put in operation during the present year.

Another obvious reform is the sale of the Charlestown prison and the application of the proceeds to the establishment of a model state prison in some thinly settled region where prison labor could be utilized in reclamation work, agriculture and other ways more beneficial to the prisoners and profitable for the commonwealth than any available in the present location. That both the state and the prisoners may rean the full efficiency should berecognized by a Interstate Industrial Competition In recent years Massachusetts has been constantly raising the level of conditions under which our working people have been obliged to perform their labor. The resulting increased efficiency of the workers has offset the loss in the hours of their labor. But there must come a time when the cost of improved conditions of health and safety and short hours of labor will exceed the increased efficiency which is produced thereby. We have not yet reached that point, but we shall always be approaching it so long as we continue to improve the condition of labor in Massachusetts.

I recommend that provision be made for an investigation with authority-First, to find out the exact facts as

Therefore, I recommend an increase in the amount of the appropriation for the savings bank insurance department in order that a thorough and systematic campaign of education may be entered upon, under the supervision of the trustees of the general insurance guaranty fund, to the end that the benefits of the system shall be extended to every man, woman and child in the commonwealth.

Massachusetts should give, through its own correspondence schools, free lecture courses, departmental demonstration work, and other methods of university extension, all that private schools now supply to those able to pay for special instruction.

Legislative Reference and Drafting Bureau

In the supply of useful information to the legislature the employes of the state library have done the best they could with their appropriations and their opportunities. But I recommend that this work be organized upon a much more efficient and enlarged basis, including a provision for expert assistance in the drafting of bills.

A drafting department in connection with the legislative reference library would be of immeasurable uselfuness to our state government.

To repeat, the two specific measures by which legislation can be greatimproved are-

1. The establishment of a legislative reference library, with a competent library force to furnish to the legislators all kinds of information relating to proposed measures.

2. The establishment of a drafting bureau, which may be called upon by members or committees of the legislature to put in correct form measures that are desired, so that they may be drawn with reference to previous legislation and existing decisions

Bowser's Two Weeks

11-11-11-11-11-11-11-11-1

He Went That Long Without a Row.

By M. QUAD. Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser sat in his office thinking. It had been two whole weeks since there was a row in his house.

This was unprecedented. Was he growing old and absent-minded? Was he neglecting the things that should not be forgotten? By neglecting to raise a row wasn't he holding out false hopes to Mrs. Bowser? Wouldn't she soon be taking advantage of his peaceful state of mind? Hadn't there been two or three indications of late that she wanted to take the bossing of things into her own Mrs. Bowser was no serf, but there were limits beyond which no wife should be allowed to go. A husband shouldn't be a tyrant, but he should rule his own house and charge his wife with extravagance. Perhaps a husband should talk things over with his wife, but he shouldn't pay much heed to what she

Mr. Bowser made up his mind that he had been remiss and that he must make up for it.

He had his dignity on when he entered the house at the usual hour.

His attitude during the dinner hour was eminently frozen and proper. He had intended to find fault with the

"So the whole house is going to ruin for the want of proper attention! No matter how much I buy, you manage to destroy it."

"What's the matter now?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she turned on him.

"The matter is that you hunted up the ink bottle and poured the contents on this carpet. Look at that spot over there. Nice sight to greet the eye of a husband, isn't it?"

"This carpet is three years old, Mr. Bowser, and that stain has been there for two years. You made it yourself by upsetting a bottle of hair dye, and. think of, I have been unable to take It out."

"What! What! You talk that way to me!" he shouted as he sprang up. "Woman, I permit"-

"Sit down!" commanded Mrs. Bowser, as she pointed at him. "Now, then, I want to have a little talk with you. You are dissatisfied as to the way this house is run."

"Yes; I am dissatisfied," replied Mr. Bowser as he sat down in surprise. "Then why don't you leave it? There is no rope around you-no reason why you should stay here and feel yourself a martyr."

"You-you are talking to me?"

"I'm talking straight at you, sir! Every week or so you raise a row about your shirts, collars or socks. I want you to stop such conduct. If you don't hands, whereas we were the proud pos-I'll gather them all up and pitch them out the window!"

"This-this is Mrs. Bowser!" he gasped as he rubbed his eyes and stared at "This is Mrs. Bowser, sir, wife of Mr. Bowser, the biggest crank in America! She has put up with your nagging just as long as she can. If there is any more of it you will hear something drop! There are a few little things that I want to speak about. You always find fault with the gas bill no matter whether it is more or less. You either quit that or we'll turn to tallow candles. I don't inhale the gas or give it to beggars!" "Say," said Mr. Bowser as he looked around the room to see if he was in now, when he's no longer jealous of his own house-"say, I-I"-"And the coal," she continued as she waved him to silence. "Coal is so much per ton. We burn about so much per month. I don't eat it or trade it off for caramels, and yet you raise a row every two or three weeks about the coal bill. If I hear another word from you this winter about coal I'll put out every fire and turn this house into a cold storage establishment?"

That was Mrs. Bowser sitting there before him—the same Mrs. Bowser whom he had buildozed and browbeaten for years and years—and she was now talking to him in that fashion. It was the same woman sure enough, but he looked at her as one in a dream, and her words seemed to come from far away. "I buy the meat and groceries," she continued, "and I buy as economically as I can. I save at least 15 per cent more than you could, and yet you are always finding fault. I am tired of it. You either cease to talk or I cease to buy, You are also constantly meddling with the kitchen help and thereby usurping my authority. If you think you can run the kitchen then stay home and do it. The best girl I have had for a year left me yesterday because you were always poking your nose in the kitchen."

"P-poke-poking my nose?" murmured Mr. Bowser as he grew white around the mouth.

"That's what I said. You thought yourself a philanthropist when you sneaked down and said it was too bad she had to work for a living, but she called you a baldheaded old meddler!" "She she called me that, did she? Why, the-the"-

"And here's another thing, Mr. Bowser. You come home and want to play cards to pass away the evenings. We sit down to play, and because I beat you three or four straight games you get mad and kick things about and wish you had spent the evening at the club. I don't know where your club is or what it is like, but any time you prefer it to my society don't hesitate on my account. As a matter of fact, you hardly know one card from another and should take lessons from me for two or three months. However, as I shall never play with you again it's a matter of indifference."

Mr. Bowser rose up and gasped. Then he sat down and choked. Mrs. Bowser could see his lips moving, but no sound came from them.

"And you talk about my extravagance in clothes," she said as she looked him up and down. "Yes, that is a pet hobby of yours, and yet you know you spend more for cocktails than I do for gloves, more for cigars than I do for shoes, more for worthless patent medicines than I do for dresses. There isn't a husband in the state earning $30 per week whose wife does not dress like a queen compared to me. You have got to stop throwing away money and turn it over to me to dress

"Woman-w-o-m-a-n!" Mr. Bowser managed to gasp, but she pointed her finger and said:

"Once in a great while you open your heart and give me a dollar for pin money, but you expect it to last me for three months. I want to change right here and now. I want a weekly allowance, and a liberal one at that! You simply drink fewer cocktails and smoke fewer cigars and I'll take the money! It's a favorite theory of yours that no woman can be trusted with money, but if I can't make 75 cents go further than your dollar I'll be willing to mend my own shoes!"

Mr. Bowser got up to walk about, but his knees wabbled so that he had

"There's another thing, while we are talking matters over. Whenever you get mad at nie you talk divorce, alimony and all that. If you want a divorce from me go and file your application, and I won't contest it. I'm young enough and good looking enough to find another husband in a year or two, and I'll take care he isn't a crank! As to alimony, I've helped you to make all you have, and I shall want half of it. If there's a separation one of us will have to leave this house and it won't be me, Mr. Bowser! I think this is about all. I am now going up to my room, and should anybody call you will say that I am not at home. Should you wish to talk with me on though I have used everything I could any subject we have missed just come upstairs and give three raps on the door, but I think we have gone into matters pretty thoroughly."

She varished upstairs, and then Mr. Bowser sat with his head in his hands and thought and pondered for the next half hour. He couldn't make it out, try as he would, and when Mrs. Bowser came downstairs at midnight she found him asleep on the lounge with a tear in the corner of either eye.

CHILD'S GINGHAM FROCK.

Spring styles for children are being shown by manufacturers. One of the new models is illustrated. It is adorned with large pearl buttons, and the patent leather which encircles the waist is finished with a pearl buckle.

THE SEWING BASKET.

Some Hints For Making the Needlewoman's Work More Convenient.

To prevent soft material from puckering when sewing it on the machine put strips of newspaper under it and sew through both material and paper.

When an unusually large hole has to be darned on house linen or weven underwear, it is a good plan to first tack a piece of net over the hole and then darn on the net. When finished cut away the rough edges of the net with a pair of small scissors.

Loose buttons, hooks and eyes, etc., are apt to get about in the workbasket. Collect them and thread hooks on one safety pin, eyes on another, buttons on another. Close each safety pin, and everything may be kept in place.

To make tucks in blouses, etc., lay the fronts together, stitch on machine with needle unthreaded, then fold by perforated line and stitch in usual

Choose a shallow drawer in which to keep the sewing materials. Fit into it small cardboard boxes and fasten each with a drawing pin through the bottom. Then place in each box different kinds of sewing material-buttons, hooks, eyes, darning needles, safety pins, thimbles, etc.

The Popular Begonia.

The begonia in its many varieties is a perennially popular house plant. One of the best winter begonias is the exquisite Gloire de Lorraine, which produces an abundance of pink flowers above its attractive waxen green foliage. It will thrive in a temperature as low as 65 degrees F. The Gloire de Sceaux is another beautiful pink begonia. The Rex begonia is the most popular indoor foliage plant, if we except the Boston fern.

Navy blue and brown and green are in great favor. Among light colors sand and putty are chosen.

Black and white combinations and soft rich colors are in favor for afternoon costumes. Brown is fashionable, but to be cor-

Points for Mothers

Bedtime Romping.

Do not let the children romp too much just at bedtime and give only a light supper if they are to sleep well. A little child is active all day, and as bedtime approaches the brain and body must be quieted.

One of the greatest dangers to a child in nerve fatigue, which leads to more serious troubles in later life, and the two best preventives of nervousness in children are nourishing food and plenty of sleep. One of the best authorities says that for the first six months a baby should sleep from sixteen to eighteen hours a day; from six months to one year a child needs from fourteen to fifteen hours sleep; at two years, thirteen to fourteen hours; at four years, eleven to twelve hours, and from six to ten years, from ten to elev-

Nine hours' sleep is needed for children from ten to sixteen, and it remains for parents to see that they get it at this most important period, when echool hours and lessons are long and the physical body is changing from childhood to young man and woman

This is the time when nervous disorders are most apt to show, and the child who has been trained to get plenty of restful sleep at regular hours will get through the best.

Does Food Influence Our Looks? You can, according to the opinion of a distinguished food expert, alter your children's features by varying their food.

If your little daughter, for instance. has too heavy a face, too massive a chin, and you are afraid that she will grow up unprepossessing cease to give her foods with starch in them, and she will become dainty and graceful,

Should she, on the other hand, be too slender of feature, with a tiny chin, you can develop rounded curves by giving her more starch than she has been having. Man is what he eats, says the expert, and he then mentions such divergencies from the normal facial type as "starch chin," "onlon chin," "tea drinker's teeth." "full lipped sugar mouth" and "potato lip." These divergencies, he says, are caused by the articles of diet named.

The food eaten makes an enormous difference in people's appearance, and, though it cannot alter the framework of the adult face, it can that of young children while their bones are still

Girls Who Ape Their Elders.

The schoolgirl nowadays wears her hair in the latest style; her skirts are as tight as the law allows and as long as her height permits. Her feet are covered with the smartest French heeled slippers, and the sheerest silk gauze stockings pretend to cover her ankles. She affects the debutante slouch and a languid air, and no one could tell by looking at her face that it had ever known soap and water, for it is often so caked with rouge and powder that the natural complexion is quite concealed. Where are the maternal eyes when the girls' clothes are ordered? It is decidedly time that girls became girls again and not young ladies of the world at fourteen or fifteen. Mothers should insist on their daughters remaining children in dress and custom until they have left school. They will be women long enough. They should not be allowed to cut their childhood short.

Teaching Consideration.

A wise, loving mother will make it her special duty to train her little ones to be willing to please others. They so quickly learn to regard it as an honor to be allowed to carry a message. they soon find a pleasure in resigning a toy to a younger brother or sister. Some children are difficult to manage. but generally they are tractable, and so much depends on how we treat them. We forget too often the injunction, "Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath." We are very prone to be polite to our casual guest and most abrupt in manner to our children. A child's employments are to him as momentous as our own occupations, and to be hastily told to run a message when he is absorbed in a thrilling fairy tale and to expect him to obey with smiling alacrity is perhaps not a little unreasonable. Yet if he is addressed gently the chances are he will not only obey cheerfully, but be pleased to help

Too Much Amusement.

It never seems to occur to some mothers that they are responsible for the nervousness of their children by trying to amuse them too much. Sometimes it is just as well to set the baby down on a blanket with some pretty toys near at hand and then leave him to himself. He may set up a nowl, but that will not do him any harm. Let him cry for awhile. It will help expand his lungs, and then he will bein to look at the toys and may be found later playing with them or tickling his own toes. He will be quiet and may have learned a few things for himself. Don't try to amuse your child all the time, as it prevents his taking the initiative, makes him dependent upon you, and you often greary him with too much attention.

Stanton, who is known to some of our older Arlington residents, and who has been a subscriber for many years to this paper, has sold the home of the family in New York, at 31 West 71st, street, where they have resided since 1888 and will in the future be at the San Remo Hotel, at 74th street, Central Park, west. They are very pleasantly situated and in an attractive neighborhood.

=A reflection seen in the window of what is known as the Farmer estate, "Idahurat," on Appleton street, Monday, about four o'clock, was responsible for the alarm from Box 64. A resident of the Appleton street section was berning some rubbish in his yard and the flames threw the reflection on the windows of the Farmer house and some person thinking the house was on fire caused the alarm to be rung in.

=Rev. S. C. Bushnell conducted the services at the funeral of Miss Irene Richardson, which were held Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the home of the deceased parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McK. Richardson. A profusion of flowers which entirely filled the room, spoke volumes of deep and universal sympathy from friends, neighbors, church, Sunday school and Town officials and employees, for in each Miss Richardson has been a competent and faithful worker.

=The Kensington Park Study Club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Fred D. Ennis, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Theodore Everett, presided. Three different papers on special sub jects relative to the Panama Canal were read by Mrs. Arthur Stevens, Madam Young and Mrs. C. The next meeting will be held with the president and will be a stereopticon lecture on the Panama little more about Dr. Wirt than we were with the successful evening, because our columns were not large enough to hold following:-

Dr. Lincoln Wirt is a native of Michisuperintendent of Congregational church work. Here he established churches at Nome, Valdez and Douglas, as well as hospitals and libraries in other places. While thus engaged he was appointed "Territorial Supt. of Education" for the U. S. government, founding the public schools which to-day are the farthest north. After three years in the Arctic region, Dr. Wirt spent seven succeeding years in world-wide travel, largely in the tropics. As guest of King Chululongkorn of Siam he sojourned a month at the Siamese Court. He travelled extensively in China, Japan, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and throughout the South Sea Islands, as well as in Africa and Europe. His popular lectures include such topics as "The Conquest of the Arctic," "Our Little Brothers in Fur," "Under the Southern Cross " and "The Heroism of Success."

=The sudden ceath of Geo. O. Gold-smith at his home, 20 Woodland street, on Jan. 8th, was a great shock to his friends, many of whom had no idea of his precarious condition, for he went about his daily avocations and other engagements as usual and was in fact when on his way to attend a meeting of Hiram Lodge. Mr. Goldsmith was torn in St. Johns, N. B., fifty-one years ago, but came to this town in early manhood, being first employed in the Wm. T. Wood Ice Tool Manf. Then he purchased the business of the late Wm. H. Richardson, corner of Mass. avenue and Grove street. Later Mr. Goldsmith sold out to W. M. Peppard and went into a similar business on Haverhill street, Boston, which he successfully conducted. He was a man of quiet manners, but always courteous and pleasant in his relations with others; of admirable triats of character, faithful in his trusts and true to his ideals. He has always been one of the staunch supporters of St. John's Episcopal church and filled several important offices in the parish. The ten-derest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Goldsmith (there are no children) in this separation of a devoted husband and wife. The funeral was Monday afternoon, at two-thirty, at the house, conducted by Rev. Chas. Tabo Hall of St. Johu's, and music by the Orpheus Male Quartet. The burial was in Mt. Pleasant. There was a profusion of flowers.

=The Woman's Missionary and Social Union of the First Baptist church held a New Year's reception at the home of Mrs. C. A. Chick, 15 Bartlett avenue, on Monday afternoon, Jan. 11th. The president, Mrs. Herbert J. Munroe, with the three vice-presidents, Mrs. Chas. B. Devereaux. Miss S. J. Bullock and Mrs. Franklin Wyman, received the guests, who were introduced by three former presidents. Mrs. Joseph Wyman, Mrs. Tappan and Mrs. Heustis. As this was the time of the regular meeting, business matters were attended to as usual. The financial report showed that the apportionment for the Union, made by the officers in charge of the New England District, had been met and a further contribution was made toward local work. A special New Year's offering which had been called for proved interesting and instructive. Mrs. Grace cured as mementoes of a signally success-Marshall entertained the company very pleasingly with her singing, and little Miss Doris Munroe recited one of Robert Louis Stevenson's poems, "The Foreign Children," in her bright, happy way. At the close of this pleasing entertainment, refreshments were served in the dining room, where the table was beautifully decorated. College ices, cakes and candy were served and Mrs. Devereaux and Mrs. Franklin Wyman poured coffee. The large company of ladies took their departure with delightful feelings of the good cheer of the afternoon.

Seating space was at a premium in the vestry of Arlington Universalist church, on Friday evening of last week, when a has been one of the leading members and group of young people presented the farce comedy, "The Dutch Detective," under the auspices of the Y.
